MOTHER LOVE SUPREME NO FIGHT ON

Mrs. McCandless Fights For Son

A mother's love for her son, her determination to fight against his imprisonment, and statements by both purents that they believe the boy has not been fairly treated by the police, have resulted in a legal move that promises to reopen the George Mc-

Young McCandless was sentenced to four years in jail last Saturday morning. He was arrested late Friday afternoon after a spectacular career in which joy-rides and bad checks figured, according to the police, with equal prominence.

Within a few hours after his sentence, the mother had begun her fight for an investigation of the boy's sanity, and all published in the Star-Bulletin last Saturday, she took the ground that an inquiry should be made into his mental condition. Publication in this paper of statements made by the police regarding the youth was followed by action on the part of the parents.

Mr. McCandless said this morning that the first they heard of their son's arrest was about 71 o'clock Friday

When they proceeded to the jall, Mr. McCandless says he was met by his boy who broke out with:

"They have sentenced me to four the prison that have sentenced me to four the prison that have sentenced me to four the hour late."

The legal opinion of P. L. Weaver first deputy die and county attorney, on the right of the superintendent of public works to charge the city and county for the water used by it, was given out this morning. After pointing out many errors apparently made by the saperintendent incident to rendering the annuicipal officials a water bill, such as giving them notice and properly algoing the bills. Mr. Weaver concludes his opinion with the statement that the suprintendent is within his rights under the statute and the finds fault with the statute and the manner, in which the superintendent in double the superintendent in the manner, in which the superintendent in double the superintendent in double the superintendent in double the superintendent in the manner, in which the superintendent in double the superintendent in double the superintendent in double the superintendent in the manner, in which the superintendent in dopted is as follows:
